Outplay Sports Foundation proudly introduces Outplay Sports Training Centre Malvani,
a state-of-the-art facility in Malad, Mumbai.

Building on the success of the Kandivali centre,
this new initiative expands our mission
of fostering sports development, fitness, and community engagement.

"The dynamic landscape of the city poses both opportunities and challenges for native Mumbai citizens. As space for entertainment dwindles, the need for Play ground's becomes more and more apparent.

Recognizing this, the OutPlay Sports Foundation aims to liaise with district authorities to create a sustainable and conducive environment for recreation, particularly focusing on country sports of historical and cultural significance."

REASONING

This proposal is based on our commitment to provide state-of-the-art sports facilities that not only address the challenges posed by urbanization but also contribute to uplifting the quality of life of the residents. We believe that a dedicated space for indigenous sports will not only serve as a hub for physical activity but also a platform for cultural preservation and community building.

As of 2020, 49 percent of India's urban population lived in slums. Slum living as a share of the urban population has been declining since 2000. The World Bank defines a slum as a group of people living under one roof who lack one or more basic needs.

The state government has admitted that around 75% of schools in Mumbai do not have their own playgrounds. This is despite the Right to Education Act, 2009 making it mandatory for schools to have their own playgrounds.
